Lucid Computing
U.S. Policy Team
Washington, D.C.

Dear Selection Committee,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the U.S. Policy Associate position at Lucid Computing. As a Georgetown University senior with experience in policy research, regulatory analysis, and strategic communications, I have focused much of my work on how Washington responds to emerging technology. Lucid's mission, making AI verification legible to policymakers so that trust in frontier systems rests on proof rather than promises, is exactly the kind of problem I want to work on. I am especially drawn to a role that sits between a technical team and the people writing the rules, and to the chance to help build a policy function from the ground up.

As a Public Policy and Regulation Intern at Holland & Knight LLP, I have written more than 50 research memos on legislative and regulatory developments across emerging technology, national security, financial services, and critical supply chains. I track federal and state developments closely enough to tell attorneys and advisors what has changed and why it matters, and I deliver weekly briefings to practice group leaders and former Members of Congress that turn dense legislative and regulatory material into decision-ready analysis. Before that, as a Legislative Intern in the Office of Representative Diana DeGette, I researched emerging technology, financial services, and appropriations issues and drafted memos and correspondence. That experience showed me what a congressional office needs from outside experts and how quickly a good, plain-language answer gets used.

I would bring the same habits to Lucid's briefings, public comments, and explainers. Co-authoring published client alerts with Holland & Knight partners taught me to write accurately and persuasively about complex subjects on deadline, and to check my understanding of technical material with the experts before it goes out. I am also comfortable building structure where none exists. As co-founder, Executive Editor, and Treasurer of Georgetown's Women in Law Club and Undergraduate Law Journal, I helped create two organizations from scratch, set up their editorial and tracking processes, and now lead the team that runs them. I would welcome owning Lucid's stakeholder-engagement system and the standard materials that let the team answer policymakers well.

I would be excited to begin my career helping frontier AI governance keep pace with the technology. Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I could contribute to Lucid's U.S. policy work.

Sincerely,
Adeline Bean
