Elevate Government Affairs
Government Relations Associate
Washington, D.C.

Dear Selection Committee,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the Government Relations Associate position at Elevate Government Affairs. I want to begin my career in a bipartisan firm where an associate's research is not a back-office exercise but the material clients carry into a meeting on the Hill. Elevate's founding premise, that it is increasingly hard to be heard in Washington and that tailored strategy is the answer, matches what I have seen firsthand from both sides of the conversation.

In Representative DeGette's office, I learned how a congressional office actually receives outside input. Staff are stretched across dozens of issues, and the requests that get traction are the ones that arrive with a clear ask, an accurate read of where a bill stands, and an understanding of the Member's priorities. At Holland & Knight, I now sit on the other side of that exchange. Preparing legislative research for practice group leaders and former Members of Congress has taught me to anticipate the question a client will be asked in the room and to make sure the answer is already on the page. I approach every memo by asking what decision it needs to support and what the reader cannot afford to get wrong.

Much of this role is about reliability, and I take that seriously. Hearing coverage and call notes are only useful if they are accurate, fast, and complete, and I have learned to treat every due-out as a commitment the whole team is making to a client. Co-founding two student organizations at Georgetown, including a law journal with a demanding citation and review process, taught me to build systems that keep many moving pieces on schedule without anyone having to chase them. I would bring that same discipline to managing client deliverables and coordinating meetings across a busy principal team.

I would be grateful for the chance to learn from a team with decades of experience on House and Senate committees and to grow into a trusted advocate for Elevate's clients. Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I could contribute to your team.

Sincerely,
Adeline Bean
