X Money Compliance
New York, NY

Dear Selection Committee,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the KYC Analyst position on the X Money Compliance team at xAI. Building a payments product inside an app used by hundreds of millions of people means compliance has to be fast, accurate, and built into the product from day one. I am excited by the chance to learn financial crimes compliance on a team that is building its function from the ground up, and to help protect both customers and the integrity of a new financial platform as it scales.

My understanding of how identity checks work in practice comes from the front line. At Georgetown's student-run credit union, I verify member identity under written procedures before every transaction, follow operational controls, and escalate anything unusual with clear notes so a supervisor can make a quick decision. That work has taught me that good KYC is about consistency and judgment together: applying the same standard to every case while noticing the details that do not fit. I have also seen how clear procedures make life easier for staff and customers alike, and I am comfortable working through a high volume of reviews without letting accuracy slip.

At Holland & Knight, I research federal developments in banking, payments, anti-money laundering, and digital assets, and I write memos that explain what new rules require and where questions remain. Much of that work involves open-source research on companies and individuals, which has made me a careful investigator who documents sources and reaches conclusions I can defend. I also keep trackers and records for several attorneys, so I value case notes that let anyone pick up a matter and understand exactly how a decision was reached. My economics and political science coursework gave me a strong foundation for understanding sanctions, financial regulation, and the reasons behind them.

I would be excited to complete customer and business reviews, resolve sanctions and PEP alerts, conduct enhanced due diligence on higher-risk accounts, document every decision clearly, and help refine procedures and quality review as X Money grows. Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I could contribute to your team.

Sincerely,
Adeline Bean
