FS Vector
Licensing Team
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Selection Committee,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the Analyst / Associate position on FS Vector's Licensing team in Chicago. State licensing is where financial innovation meets the practical reality of regulation: a payments, lending, or digital asset company cannot serve a single customer until it has earned the trust of regulators in each state where it operates. I am drawn to a firm that helps innovative companies build that trust carefully and at scale, and to a team that trains early-career professionals across every license type rather than in a single silo.

At Holland & Knight, I research federal and state developments in financial services, payments, lending, anti-money laundering, and digital assets, and I write memos that explain what a rule requires and where questions remain. That work has taught me to read statutes and agency guidance closely and to keep a careful record of sources, because a client relying on my summary needs to know exactly why a requirement applies. I also maintain trackers for several attorneys with owners, deadlines, and open requests, and I have learned that a well-kept record is what keeps a busy matter from slipping when many deadlines arrive at once.

My interest in non-bank financial regulation began at the front line. At Georgetown's student-run credit union, I follow written procedures and compliance controls every day, verify member identity before transactions, and document exceptions so a supervisor can act quickly. Seeing how those controls protect members gave me real respect for the regulators who write them. Earlier, at the National Endowment for Financial Education, I followed similar legislation across many state capitols and saw how much requirements can differ from one jurisdiction to the next, which is exactly the challenge licensing clients face. My economics and political science coursework adds a foundation for understanding why those rules exist.

I would be excited to prepare and track license applications and renewals, manage filings and client records, correspond with regulators and third parties, and help clients build compliance programs as they grow. I am eager to learn NMLS and the state portals in depth. Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I could contribute to your team.

Sincerely,
Adeline Bean
